In this book "Roots and Destinies", the author expounds on the monumental effects of our roots, our ancestry on what we ultimately become in life. Drawing from numerous Bible examples and from his own life, he explains that what a man's parent, grand parents and great grand parents were and did will affect his progeny to the third and fourth generations. Hence, christian parents have the divine responsibility to live out the faith they profess in order to pass on to their lineage a legacy of righteousness. Many christians need to know a radical separation from inherited sins, diseases and curses including those generated from their own rebellion against God. That is the pathway to obtain capable workers who see the urgency of the supreme commission and are committed to carry it out.
